

Contents

Acknowledgments — V

Introduction — XI

Section I: Concert Dance in the Jewish Community in Pre-State Israel (1920–1948)

Chapter 1

What Do We Dance? — 3

Chapter 2

The Various Ways of Making Hebrew Dance — 12

Chapter 3

Creation of Hebrew Holiday Pageants — 27

Chapter 4

Eretz-Israeli Expressionist Dance — 31

Section II: Three Aspects of American and Israeli Encounters (1948–1964)

Chapter 5

Israeli Expressionist Dance Meets American Dance — 49

Chapter 6

American Dance Meets Dance in Israel — 65

Chapter 7

The American and Yemenite Encounter — 86

Section III: Is Ballet Still Legitimate? (1948–1964)

Chapter 8

Sowing the Seeds of Ballet — 101

Chapter 9

The Israel Opera Ballet — 115

Section IV: Looking to Professionalize Dance: Looking to the Outside (1964–1980)

Chapter 10

Political and Social Changes — 129

Chapter 11

The Batsheva Dance Company (First Era) — 132

Chapter 12

The Bat-Dor Dance Company (First Era) — 155

Chapter 13

The Israel Ballet (First Era) — 166

Chapter 14

New Standards for Dance Teaching — 176

Section V: Between the Periphery and the Center (1948–1980)

Chapter 15

Tel Aviv – Center of Cultural Activity — 185

Chapter 16

Dance at the Edge of the Metropolis — 188

Chapter 17

To Dance in Holy Jerusalem and Socialist Haifa — 199

Chapter 18

Dance in the Kibbutz: The Struggle over the Necessity of Concert Dance — 211

Chapter 19

The Inter-Kibbutz Dance Company: How to Express Our Uniqueness Onstage? — 219

Section VI: The Breakthrough of Alternative Dance and Movement-Theater (1977–1990)

Chapter 20

Alternative Dance — 241

Chapter 21

Batsheva 2: A Backup Company or New Dance? — 247

Chapter 22

Individualists and New Ensembles — 252

Chapter 23

Movement-Theater in Israel — 282

Chapter 24

How Do You Meet and How Do You Part? — 286

Section VII: Sowing Seeds – Setting Up Stages (1984–2000)

Chapter 25

Stages for Creativity — 301

Chapter 26

The Spanish Stage — 309

Chapter 27

The Butoh Stage — 316

Chapter 28

The Arab Stage — 324

Chapter 29

The Ethiopian Stage — 333

Chapter 30

Immigrants from the USSR Encounter Israeli Dance — 340

Chapter 31

Broadening Horizons in Dance Education — 347

Section VIII: Veteran Companies in a Changing World (1980–2000)

Chapter 32

The Curtain's Still Up: Batsheva, the Israel Ballet, and Inbal — 357

Chapter 33

The Curtain Comes Down: Kol Demama, Tamar Jerusalem, Bat-Dor — 379

Section IX: About to Bloom (1990–2000)

Chapter 34

It All Comes Together – Renaissance of Creative Impulse — 399

Chapter 35

The New Voice of the Kibbutz and Batsheva Dance Companies — 410

Section X: The Time and Place in Which We Live (1990–2010)

Chapter 36

To Speak of Me I Knew — 433

Chapter 37

Eshkol-Wachman Movement Notation: Movement Speaking Its Own Language — 460

Chapter 38

The Religious and the Secular – The Dynamic Between Them — 474

Chapter 39

Taking a Political Stance — 482

Chapter 40

To Regions Only Imagined — 491

Summary — 501

Bibliography — 505

Index — 515